It is billed as the world's most radical relocation project. Kiruna is the home to the world's largest iron-ore mine, opened in 1898 and still in use.

Next, visit Jukkasjärvi Ice Hotel which features rooms, icebar, church and other art exhibitions entirely made out of sculptured ice and snow from the neighboring Torne River. The building process starts in spring when massive blocks of ice are harvested from Torne River. Each block weighs up to two tons and is stored cold during the summer, ready for the winter and the construction of Ice Hotel.

In addition to ice, "snice" (a mix of snow and ice) is also used for building the hotel's floors, walls, and ceilings. Snice is not only beautiful to look at but also durable and reliable, making it ideal for creating the impressive structures of the Ice Hotel. For many of the artworks, light plays a crucial role in creating the final experience. The light adds an extra dimension that makes each sculpture tell its own story. It's a symbiosis between art and light, where every beam helps create the unique feeling that makes each room its own work of art.

Return to the hotel, have dinner and proceed for aurora hunting by the Torne River or any other area.
